

Finding out about Hockey's Heritage:
Talks at The Hockey Museum

The origins of the modern game of hockey might be on the green fields of South East England but today, the game is played worldwide by over 132 countries. How hockey spread far and wide has yet to be fully researched but Janet Beverley is currently piecing together the development of the women's game in Australia. While she is in the UK and at THM, she has agreed to talk about her findings to date.

Australian Women's Hockey – from England with Love

A presentation by Janet Beverley

Thursday 5th November 2015 at 2.00pm

At The Hockey Museum, Poole Rd, Woking

This presentation will highlight the development of the women's game in Australia from its beginnings in the early 20th century to their arrival as one of the world's top nations and their merger with the men in the 1970s. The first touring team to Australia was England in 1914 but what influence did England continue to have on Australia's development? Come and listen to Janet speak and discover an Aussie's perspective on the English influence!

Janet Beverley is a former Australian international player (back row 3rd from right above) and is visiting England and The Hockey Museum as part of her research programme. She is registered for a PhD at the University of Queensland.

For more information and directions and to register your attendance please contact Katie Dodd at katiedodd@hockeymuseum.net or phone 01458 259166